Parish Offices in Need of Computer Equipment

It has become evident that the parish offices replace a desktop computer and a few integral components to the office’s computer network. In part, this is a positive sign of growing pains yet also another practical dimension of the church that can sometimes be neglected. You can offer to offset these costs as a gift to our Parish of St. Joseph. If you are interested in helping to provide for these necessities, please call the office or talk with Father Andrew or Father Joshua following Mass.

“Etiquette for the Masses” (part two)

Promptness For Mass

Arriving to Church on time is important! Certainly, some things can not be helped or foreseen, that results in a late arrival. Every effort should be made to plan ahead for coming to Mass and to allow for some personal time, for prayer and adoration, to prepare for Mass.

Young Children

Although children can be a little noisy at Mass, it is understandable that some level of noise will exist. If children become out of control, enough so to be disruptive and distractive to parishioners, then it would be appropriate for the child or children to be taken to another part of the church (chapel) or quiet room. An effort should be made by parents, in the home, to teach children the importance of the Mass and how best behavior and proper manners are expected. Parents should endeavor to discuss the “do’s and dont’s” in Church. For example, standing on the pews, chewing gum, eating, bringing toys, looking at parishioners in the other pews, screaming, running etc. Of course, infants and very young toddlers are exceptions to the rule!

For the safety of children parents should accompany them whenever they leave the church during Mass.

We will soon have the Parish Hall accommodated for parents to use as a cry room and experience the Mass.

Older Children

Please insure that cell phones and any other electronic devices are turned off. Preferably they should not be brought into the church.

What To Wear and Not To Wear

As a sign of respect for our Savior and Redeemer, it is important that special consideration be made to attire. The Catechism of the Catholic Church states, “To prepare for worthy reception of this sacrament, the faithful should observe the fast required in their Church. Bodily demeanor (gestures, clothing) ought to convey the respect, solemnity, and joy of this moment when Christ becomes our guest.” (1387)

Specifically, we should endeavor to be modest in dress, clean and decent. Immodest dress, especially for women, distracts others and could cause them to sin in thought. Cloths that draw attention to ourselves due to color, style or quality are not appropriate to wear at Mass. Wearing one’s best is always encouraged and certainly reflects the importance of the Mass and our respect for Christ.

Non-Catholic Guests/Visitors

Non-Catholics that have been invited to attend the Mass should be provided with an explanation of the “do’s and don’ts” specifically with respect to their not being eligible to receive the Eucharist and what aspects of the Mass they can participate in.

SPANISH LEVEL I COURSE

Rita Alfaya, a Spanish and Italian language instructor and parishioner of St. Joseph Parish, is offering a Spanish Level I course to parishioners at no charge. The course is tailored to students with no previous exposure to the Spanish language. The main emphasis is to understand how the language works by reading, writing, listening and speaking Spanish. Classes also include cultural knowledge of Spain and Latin America. Students will be exposed to native Spanish speaking with conversation. Practice during every class will include commonly used phrases and idiomatic expressions. This six-week duration course will be on Tuesdays from 6:00 p.m. to 7:30 p.m. beginning on January 24, 2012, in the youth room of St. Joseph Parish. Call the St. Joseph office for more info.

NEW TRANSLATION OF THE ROMAN MISSAL IS A PLUS FOR CATHOLICS

by James Breig

Microsoft Vista and “New Coke” have proven that not every change is for the better. Furthermore, when change comes to important elements of life, it is often resisted with the cry of “we never did it that way before.” However, experts who are enthusiastic about the changes to the Roman Missal – the book that contains the prayers for the Mass – think the alterations are improvements that will lead to a deeper spiritual experience. “Because a new edition of the Latin Roman Missal was issued in 2002, it is necessary for all the countries of the world to translate this missal into the vernacular,” says Msgr. Anthony Sherman, executive director of the U.S. bishops’ Secretariat of Divine Worship, in explaining why the changes are being made.

But translation is not something easy to accomplish, concedes Msgr. Kevin Irwin, dean of the School of Theology and Religious Studies at The Catholic University of America in Washington. “We all bring our own prejudices and ideas to translation,” he says. “It is hoped that the new texts will be more accurate so that our faith and our statements of faith are reliable.”

Msgr. Irwin says changes to the Roman Missal are rare. “The previous Roman Missal (in Latin) was published in 1570, with minor adjustments [being made] in editions through 1962,” he says. “After the Second Vatican Council, the new [Roman Missal] was published in 1970, followed by a 1975 edition with minor adjustments and then the third edition in 2002 with additional prayers for new saints’ feasts etc.”

Father Paul Turner of the Diocese of Kansas City-St. Joseph in Missouri elaborated on the latter point, saying that the missal “includes additional saints’ days that are now on the calendar, as well as some Masses for other circumstances. In addition, the rubrics in Holy Week have many small emendations.”

What makes the translation of the 2002 edition of the Roman Missal different is that this translation is carried out under the latest Vatican guidelines for translating the Mass into vernacular languages. This new guideline, Liturgiam Authenticam, published in 2001, urges a stronger adherence to Latin wording and structure than earlier directives.

The results have led to some concern, voiced even by bishops, that the new English translations of the missal are not user-friendly. In the words of one critic, the language “tends to be elitist and remote from everyday speech and frequently not understandable. The vast majority of God’s people in the assembly are not familiar with words ‘ineffable,’ ‘consubstantial’ and ‘inviolable.’” While some words may be unfamiliar to the faithful, many think that this translation sometimes captures with a greater eloquence the content of the particular prayers.

Msgr. Irwin says that the Church uses technical words in its vocabulary sometimes because those words capture concepts of the faith that would not be easy to understand without using a lot of other words. “For example, since the 13th century, we have used the term ‘transubstantiation’ to describe the change that occurs in the bread and wine at Mass. Before the change, it is bread and wine. After the change, it looks like, smells like and tastes like bread and wine, but now it is something totally different.”

In Father Turner’s view, vocabulary is not a major problem. “People will readily understand the texts,” he says. “The reason the missal includes such words is that the vocabulary in the Latin originals is so broad. Latin uses a variety of synonyms for words like ‘sacrifice,’ ‘love,’ ‘mercy’ and ‘wonderful.’ In order to represent that diversity and to provide variety among the prayers in English, a broad vocabulary is being used in the translation.”

In recognition of the disturbance change can bring, he adds that bishops’ conferences around the world have repeatedly stressed that these translations should not be used without prior and significant explanation. “One of the things we did not do 40 years ago, when the liturgy was first put into the vernacular, was to explain the changes fully,” he says. “We need several layers of education and instruction about the translations, but even more importantly about the Mass itself.”

James Breig, a long-time diocesan newspaper editor and freelance writer, has written hundreds of articles for Catholic magazines. For 25 years, he also authored an award-winning column on the media for Catholic newspapers. Now retired, he continues to write and is working on a book about World War II.

Feast of Our Lady of Guadalupe

This feast, honoring our Lady, Patron of the Americas, is celebrated on December 11-12. Following her appearance to Juan Diego in 1531, six million Native Mexicans became Christians. Mexicans and those of Mexican descent have a special devotion to Our Lady of Guadalupe because they owe their Christianity to her influence. However, there are lessons for all of us in her appearance so many centuries ago. First, God has chosen Mary to lead us to Jesus. Second, Mary appeared to Juan Diego as an Aztec princess and spoke in his language demonstrating to us that we must appreciate the culture of others in order to bring them the Word of God. Though we have celebrated this Feast at St. Joseph for many years, this year we will host two opportunities to learn more about the Feast. On December 2nd at 7pm, Diocesan seminarian, Julio Barrera, will facilitate a presentation in the parish hall. The following week, on December 9th at 7pm, "Guadalupe" a feature length film will be shown. All are encouraged to attend. Both presentations will be bilingual and will help bring us to a deeper understanding of the Feast and our fellow parishioners. More information about activities to celebrate the Feast will follow.
